

News Reporting in the Internet Age

Thank you for your interest in our research. We are interviewing journalists about the ways the news industry influences the practice of journalism. This research project is being conducted with undergraduates from Purdue University's Honors College, under the supervision of Professor Dwaine H. A. Jengelley.

This research has the approval of Purdue's Institutional Review Board. The protocol number of the study is 1610018311. The information collected from you will be confidential and kept either on a secure electronic server or password secured data storage device indefinitely. Only the principal investigators and members of the research team have access to this material. The project's research records may be reviewed by departments at Purdue University responsible for regulatory and research oversight.

Your participation in this study is voluntary. You may choose not to participate or, if you agree to participate, you can withdraw your participation at any time without penalty or loss of benefits to which you are otherwise entitled.

If you have questions about your rights while taking part in the study or have concerns about the treatment of research participants, please call the Human Research Protection Program at (765) 494-5942, email irb@purdue.edu, or write to:
